

Community Service Collaborative

Dear Business owner,

Sweaty Turtle Entertainment has been working with a local clinical psychologist, whose focus is on the treatment of survivors of domestic and sexual abuse, to craft a educational script on how to recognize a controlling and abusive partner. This video project will be provided to schools, domestic violence support groups and shelters, as well as others for use in their education and health programs throughout New Hampshire and beyond. Having you as our partner on this project not only will help to get it done and out there to the various organizations that could provide to young people and help them to be more empowered to stay away from these types of relationships, but will also show the community that you stand against abuse.

A little background on Rick and the Turtle

Creative Director Rick Dumont has worked with survivors and victims for more than 24 years, as a police dispatcher and an award winning investigative journalist, and is also a survivor, has put together a team of some of the finest young performers in New England to bring this project to life. It is designed to not only help raise awareness of the prevalence of abusive behavior in dating relationships, but also to help empower and enlighten high school and college aged people so that they may avoid getting involved too deeply in an abusive or controlling relationship.

Now, as a successful documentary and commercial film maker and producer, Rick and his company continues to work to raise awareness of what they consider pertinent social issues by focusing on producing video content for non-profits, as well as producing events that benefit organizations who work with the survivors and provide counseling, education, legal assistance, and advocacy. He has worked with such organizations as;

- Mass Kids

- The Enough Abuse Campaign
- Long Way Home
- Bridges of Nashua
- Manchester YWCA
- Cocheco Valley Humane Society
- Haven
- Boston Rape Crisis Center
- Casa Myrna
- Jane Doe
- C-10 Foundation
- The Freedom Café
- And others

Additionally, Sweaty Turtle has teamed up with the Shawna Shea Foundation, a non-profit organization based in Massachusetts. Founded, as a memorial tribute to their daughter, who lost her life in a car accident at the age of 16, the Shea's work tirelessly to help young people, especially women, achieve their dreams of furthering their education in a variety of artistic endeavors.

We have received the support of: The Strafford County Attorney's office Victim's Assistance Division, Child Advocacy Center and the NH Coalition Against Domestic and Sexual Violence, who helped to ensure that the script was sending the best possible message that it be a valuable a tool of empowerment and enlightenment for young people to identify unhealthy relationships.

Groups like Youth Villages, the CAC , Coalition and Haven will be the recipients of the project, along with schools across New Hampshire and beyond.

Your support will go towards the hiring of some of the most talented young professional performers in New England, to perform roles in three vignettes which depict scenarios of subtle seemingly innocuous comments or behaviors can be early warning signs of a controlling and abusive partner. These situations and others are all too common and go ignored by a young person, which is why it is even more necessary to educate young adults and teens on watching out for red flag situations and empowering oneself to reach out for help. One thing that Rick learned during his time as a journalist, was following the publication of a survivor's story he wrote, police in his paper's coverage area experienced an increase in the number of new calls from victims of domestic abuse. Raising awareness works to help give strength to those who had been suffering in silence and it's time to raise the veil and work to ensure that our young people are empowered so that they don't feel obligated to stay in a controlling or abusive relationship. Additionally, your generous contribution will go towards the hiring of the professional production crew, any location fees, insurance, and equipment rental needed to ensure a fully professional production over the three day filming period.

Additionally your generosity, support and partnership will allow us to provide the educational video to 100 organizations in New Hampshire and throughout New England for no associated licensing fee. .
